COURSE DESCRIPTION:

(include problem being addressed, general nature of work done, location of work, other pertinent information)

Pamela will work on the analysis and interpretation of the results a dataset involving five years of vessel-based surveys (2004-2008) off Central California, including Black-footed Albatross sightings and concurrent environmental and oceanographic variables. This will involve: i) writing the results and discussion sections, ii) constructing an appropriate introduction building upon her review of the literature, and iii) formatting the chapter for submittal to a peer reviewed journal. In addition to finishing her first chapter of her MS dissertation, Pamela will begin her analysis of four years of satellite telemetry data (2004, 2005, 2007, 2008), which she will use during her summer internship at the Cordell Bank National Marine Sanctuary office. Pamela will meet with Dr. Hyrenbach (~2 hr s/ week) to address analysis issues and to discuss revisions to her writings.
